You cannot serve God
and mammon.

Luke 16:13

Twenty-fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Today's Gospel teaches us to be honest in all things, for to be so is to be faithful to God: "You can not serve both God and mammon" (a biblical term for riches).

Jesus tells us and shows us, by his example, how to live in reality, and not in the reality that we dream. First: we must adore and worship God, not ourselves or each other or things. Second: we must love people and use things, not love things and use people. Third: we must use things, as enterprisingly and cleverly and responsibly as we can.

~Peter Kreeft in Food for the Soul

We Have Only One Lord

We must serve him with all our heart, with the natural gifts He himself has given us, using every legitimate means throughout our entire life. We must direct everything toward him: our work, our plans, our leisure, without holding anything back. The reasonable Christian does not devote one part of his attention to God and another to the business of this world. He must convert both into the service of God and neighbor by living the virtues of justice and charity.

On the Lighter Side

A couple definitions of honesty

Tennyson: He never sold the truth to save the hour.

Philip Sidney: The only disadvantage of an honest heart is credulity.

B. C. Forbes: A shady business never yields a sunny life.
